Senator Richard L. Neuberger

Flags on state buildings were flown at half mast Wednesday, paying respect to one of Oregon's most respected and honored statesmen, Richard L. Neuberger, who died Wednesday following a sudden stroke. Senator Neuberger's death has been a great shock to people in the State of Oregon and those concerned with political circles.

A man dedicated to serving his public, Senator Neuberger had only last week filed for election to a third term as Oregon's Democratic senator.

"Senator Neuberger gave his life in public service," stated Oregon Governor Mark Hatfield. "He gained a national reputation as a writer. He added to his stature as a state legislator and as a member of the United States Senate. With his wife, Maurine, Oregon was represented by a most able team in Washington."

"History will recognize him as one of the most articulate spokesmen to have served our state and nation."

Successful not only in his political field, Senator Neuberger achieved great recognition as magazine writer and wrote several successful books dealing with Oregon history.

"Oregon and the nation have lost a courageous leader whose voice and pen will be sorely missed in this time of national and international crisis," expressed Oregon's senior Senator Wayne Morse.

Senator Neuberger's "sincerity, integrity and dedication to public service" have brought to him the "highest tribute the Senate can pay to one of its members — the unqualified respect of not only the senators from his own party but of his colleagues on the Republican side of the aisle," commented Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

We at Oregon State College can only re-express in our hearts the respect given to Senator Neuberger by his colleagues quoted here. Certainly the State of Oregon has lost an outstanding public servant and friend with his death. The United States has lost the service of one of her finest citizens.

'Beware the Ides of March!'

Julius Caesar, according to William Shakespeare, was given the following advice by an obliging soothsayer: "Beware the Ides of March." Since soothsayers today are seldom taken seriously, one would be tempted to ask that philosophical question, "So what?"

Well, as most of us know by this time, the Ides of March come next Tuesday, and next Tuesday is the midst of Final Exams Week — the true nothing week. Next week is the week to go to only one class in each course, each exhibiting his knowledge, or lack of it.

Caesar also asked so what? But the emperor's friends didn't like his ambitions and they made it a point with him to vent their displeasure. And so the great Roman leader was removed from the scene.

We may apply this situation to ourselves at the term's end. Are we ambitious? If so, to do what? Possibly to get an education or are we here to further our social aims before all else, leaving scholastic endeavor to fill in the gaps?

Obviously, most students are attempting to get an education at OSC — or so it is believed. But things can intervene with even the highest of aspirations, and procrastination, the old thief of time and the g.p.a., can creep in. Nature and fate are often against the student in the form of good weather and general restlessness.

And the student can find himself in the horrible position of being "done in" by his ambition to see how far he can get with a minimum of effort. If he is, he will perhaps realize how he came by his poor g.p.a., but the sting of the realization that he has done poorly will cause him considerable grief and remorse. The student in this position will feel betrayed by himself — as well as his professors. Thus he will ask, "Et tu, Prof?"

Prevent this situation from creeping upon you. Do not go forth on the Ides of March — until you are prepared.

Crowning Miss OSC

ASOSC Senate recently passed a resolution whereas Miss OSC will be the official hostess for all ASOSC Senate sponsored functions. Her selection will be by an all-school vote preceding Mothers Weekend.

Miss OSC was originally a part of the AIS Mayhem production during Mothers Weekend. Her title was changed a few years ago from Queen of the Mayhem to Miss OSC.

We cannot understand why Senate did not settle the matter thoroughly while it was on the floor. If Miss OSC is to be an official hostess for Senate and is to be selected by an all-school vote, why is Associated Independent Students in charge of the nominations and presentations? It would be more appropriate for Senate to assume the responsibility to make her really a representative.

It has been traditional that Miss OSC be crowned during Mothers Weekend. We feel that her selection and presentation should be incorporated into the Mothers Weekend committee which is headed by a Senate-appointed chairman. In doing this, continuation of Miss OSC would be assured and at the same time she would be chosen by the groups, she represents — ASOSC Senate and the students of Oregon State College.

Last year, due to the folding of the Mayhem production, Miss OSC was crowned at the Inter-Fraternity Sing before a crowd of 6,000 people. The ceremony was much more formal and impressive than in previous years. Therefore, why is she being crowned this year at the play "Kismet" before a crowd of 1,000 people, instead of at the IFC Sing before a crowd of around 5,000? If Miss OSC is to be the honor that it is supposed to be, crowning her on a stage between play acts is certainly not a way to achieve it.

ENLARGE AIRPORT

BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany's largest city, Leipzig, will be cut off from air travel soon because of an airport enlarging project the East German news service ADN reported Monday night. The only airport for the city of 610,000 will be closed for more than three months by the project that begins March 14, ADN said.

WIND STORMS

by
Chuck Wenstrom

Spring term and the annual treks to the beach or the mountains are just around the corner. Many groups and organizations on the campus are lining up dates for their Spring Retreats and/or Planning Conferences. For the activity minded student, spring term is the busiest time of all.

And the MU construction keeps rolling along. It seems the western addition is a little ahead of the eastern side in total construction from a sidewalk superintendent's point of view.

At present the plans for the new bowling alley the occupy the basement section to house calls for a color combination of tangerine and black. The tangerine color being the closest to orange. The combination should be very effective.

The Zeta Tau Alpha sorority is once again the center of topic for campus gossip circles. Last term the house had a ladder extending up to the second story window with various pieces of wearing apparel hanging from intermittent rungs of the ladder. More recently a common house hold piece of furniture, made of porcelain, is situated atop the chimney. We have heard of overcrowded houses but this is ridiculous.

There are some on this campus who would like to see this column stay out of campus politics. They don't like the idea of mentioning possible other parties or other candidates. Now why is this? These persons say in effect, "Leave well enough alone. If students want to run for office they don't need any prodding from you."

I disagree. Enuff said. With the end of the term there comes an end to "column notes." Nothing further comes to mind so have happy finals, happy vacation and a happy registration next term.

Death Penalty To Be Retained

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California lawmakers killed a proposal to abolish capital punishment today and Gov. Edmund G. Brown said he was now "absolutely powerless" to interfere with Caryl Chessman's May 2 execution date.

The California Senate's Judiciary Committee voted 7-7 to keep the bill from the Senate floor. Opponents of the gas chamber said this meant the bill was dead in the special session of the Legislature.

Brown had granted Chessman a 60-day reprieve on Feb. 19 just 10 hours before he was to have been executed after 11½ years on death row. He ordered the delay so the Legislature could act once and for all to outlaw the death penalty and because of word he had received from the State Department that the government of Uruguay was concerned over possible student demonstrations during President Eisenhower's visit.

In his statement today Brown said: "I have heard it said, and I have read in the newspapers, that this action of the Legislature leaves the fate of Caryl Chessman in my hands. This is not true."

"I continue to have the general power of clemency. But because Chessman has been convicted of other felonies, I could exercise clemency as distinguished from a brief reprieve only on the affirmative recommendation of the state Supreme Court."

"The court has twice refused such a recommendation. The reasons for the reprieve I granted last month no longer exist constitutionally. I am therefore absolutely powerless to act in that Chessman case."

Brown, who strongly opposes the death penalty, said he was "of course deeply sorry" that the Judiciary Committee prevented his proposed measure from reaching the Senate floor.

Happy Finals Week!

FENCING

Risk!!!

To the Editor:

Last Friday an advertisement from our southern rivals appeared in this paper telling us of the upcoming appearance of that wonderful comedian Shelly Berman. Since closing hours can be extended to 12 p.m. on week nights for out of town concerts, many of us decided to spend the first evening of dead week in Eugene.

I am sure that those that went will agree with me that the show was outstanding, but quite lengthy. As the final round of applause was echoing through MacArthur Court, the clock was striking 11 p.m. But everyone from OSC was confident that it was easy to drive from Eugene to Corvallis in less than one hour. What they didn't know, however, was that old Mother Nature was in the process of stirring up what would be quite a rainstorm for the trip back.

A few minutes later, a ride began that was to prove to be one of the most perilous adventures of my life. It was a race with the fury of nature to make OSC's strict closing hours. The rain poured and water from 3 to 6 inches deep collected on the road. Hitting those puddles at speeds approaching 60 mph is quite an experience. But my date made it into her living room by 12 p.m.

I am now in the process of examining the reasons for this race against time. Was the risk worth it?

Strictness in the administration of rules and regulations has its virtues, since if you weaken once, people will continue to infringe. But no where is it stated in print what the outcome may be of a you-can't-help-it tardiness. The ominous shadow of the Student Board of Reference and "Gal, you're in trouble," hangs over all late comers. Thus people have to rush to get back, and some day this will mean death to one or more students.

I pose the question to the Student Board and to all the students of OSC — Must the rules and regulations of social conduct be so archaic as to endanger the life and limb of the student?

Trapping...

To the Editor:

I noted with much interest the article in Friday's Barometer: "All Mice, Rats and Skunks Beware of the Fateful Traps." I question the necessity or value of trapping these animals. Ecologists tell us that every living thing has an important function to perform in the "biotic community" of the out-of-doors; that no form of life is without significance, purpose or value.

Albert Schweitzer speaks of "Reverence for Life" and insists that ethical consideration should extend to all living creatures; that we should take the life of no living thing unless this is absolutely necessary. Joseph Wood Krutch in two books, "The Great Chain of Life" and "Voice of the Desert," writes of our great need to learn love and respect for the living creatures with which we share this great mystery of life. He points out how we are constantly thinking in terms of how we can "use" living things for our own selfish benefit, rather than regarding them as having rights and values in themselves, completely apart from their relationship to man.

How much appreciation for the life of a mammal can be learned from the study of a lifeless skin or "teaching specimen." Is learning to distinguish the various species more important than learning to care for an animal, and to regard with awe and wonder its intelligence, habits, beauty and purpose in relationship with all life?

The awarding of "points" for trapping these animals dismays me. It seems to me that this teaches a calloused disregard for life, rather than respect for it. What is the need for such an enormous number of specimens? — The article stated over 700 mammals have been trapped — Isn't it possible that what these animals lost is worth more than what the zoology department gained?

Fireman 'Hung' By Ring Finger

His ring caught on the latch as Ed Burrier whirled through the doorway and grabbed the brass pole to descend to the main floor of Central fire station in response to an alarm from Harding school at 7:45 p.m. yesterday.

Left dangling by one finger, Burrier was released by Fireman William Moore. He was rushed to Good Samaritan hospital by emergency ambulance, where it was found the flesh had been peeled back beyond the first knuckle.

The ambulance run with Fireman Burrier, occasioned by what amounted only to a "smoke investigation" at the Harding school, was one of six calls for the ambulance yesterday. Only two of them were for transfer of patients.

Mrs. Grant Feikert, of 321 North 23rd, was picked up in front of the Corvallis public library at 8:20 p.m. She fell on the steps leading up from the sidewalk. It was learned.

Harry Tabor, 41, of 2911 Greeley drive, was brought in from Plywood Products plant at Camp Adair at 10:10 a.m. The hospital had no information as to his injury.

At 12:40 p.m. the ambulance took a woman from the Crees building to Good Samaritan. There was no record of her name, or of her arrival at the hospital, it was reported.

GWIL EVANS LOOKS AT LIFE

Ever had to search for that elusive IBM number that the registrar assigned to you as an entering student? You know, the one that everybody has but which no one can remember. LIFE's double-page "Speaking of Pictures" spread in the March issue presents a similar problem, but instead of a number — the trick is to find a lost Marine Corps Pfc. on the face of an 8-foot Hawaiian precipice. Measures barely over a quarter of an inch in the 17-inch photo. Reesman faced the same predicament in trying to spot the Leatherneck — and how did he get there? Chasing a lost gun belt, how else?

Harry Golden, widely acclaimed North Carolina publisher and author of two best-sellers, has penned an article for LIFE which effectively portrays the race crisis in our southern states. Proposing what could be termed "Golden's Rule," the "Carolina State" publisher was astonished, LIFE says, when the lunch counter successfully instituted Golden's Rule. The rule: "Since the trouble begins only when the Negro sits down, all we have to do is to remove the seats from the schools and restaurants."

Watch that Plunge
Spring term at Oregon State has been described as a period of plunging necklines and similar grades but if g.p.a.'s plunge like the neckline of Rico's 88 Parisian dress creation — nothing but academic class can result.

LIFE tells the ladies where to get their favorite new styles from Paris — at only one-tenth the original cost. What's the secret? Simply buy from Ohrbach's experts in copying the latest from French style centers. Its only west coast store is in Los Angeles and even at a 90 per cent price cut it is still expensive girls.

Your Interdigitation Is Great!

A Barometer "Fencing" letter-writer recently proposed that OSC needed a Beaver Smile Week. What orthodontists at the University of Alabama tried and something not so very different in Jefferson County, Ala. Wanting to discover if jaw structure of southern children differed from that in other regions, the orthodontists sponsored a Smile Contest complete with X-rays. Sure enough, the specialists say, the kids do exhibit some significant differences from their regional neighbors. Some of the subjects showed good interdigitation, the researchers added!

Want to keep up with the Joneses? Everybody does. LIFE comments that Princess Margaret's fiancé, Anthony Armstrong-Jones, is far from an accomplished photographer although his pictures published in next week's issue "show a perceptive eye."

Then there's the other Jones, a nearly illiterate Negro ex-GI, who talked the Army into digging a 32-foot hole on one of its bases because he is sure that there is gold to be found there. He is still digging.

The Joneses, Harry Golden, Elvis' glorious homecoming, and even a letter from OSC student Glenn Chambers — all beneath the bright-red mast—it's LIFE.

OSC Processes $1 Million Grants

The number of scholarships available to students throughout the nation this year has soared to more than $100 million. This is more than triple the 1951 level.

Oregon State College now processes close to $1 million in scholarships including graduate fellowships and government assistance programs.

This great increase in the number and size of scholarships is attributed to the growing gifts from corporations. Ford Foundation, Sear, Roebuck & Co., and International Business Machines Corp. are just a few of the large contributors.

Companies Give Grants
Companies generally have one of two reasons for giving a scholarship. Some companies hope the scholarship will give them the edge in recruiting top-ranking students when they graduate. Some are interested in developing an adequate national supply of trained scientists and engineers and others are simply viewing the tax-deductible benefits. Some are also interested in the education of their own employees.

John M. Stalnaker, president of National Merit Scholarship Corporation, says, "Whatever the reason, we are glad to report that the number and size of scholarships are increasing and seem likely to continue to do so." Stalnaker's organization encourages business firms to step up their scholarship giving.

LIFE says, when the Golden Gate begins only when the sun does to do is to remove the taunts.

Photo Course To Be Offered To Foresters

The OSC School of Forestry will offer its annual aerial photo short course March 21 to 25 as a service to foresters who use aerial photos in their professional work.

The course covers fundamentals of photo interpretation and photogrammetry as well as the most advanced methods of field application. Topics will include: contract specifications for aerial photography; projection of photo detail to base maps; timber volume estimation from aerial photos, and engineering problems.

J. R. Dilworth, head of the forest management department, is in charge of the course. In past years foresters from across the nation and from many foreign countries have come to OSC for the special training.

do not go to the students that need them most. This has kept many talented students out of college. "At the graduate level, particularly, awards are based on merit rather than need," says T. David Hoxworthy, director of financial aid at Columbia University. It has been noted that about one-third of the scholarship winners just ask for the minimum help of $100 annually, explaining that their parents can pay the rest of their college expenses.

McDonald Room in Library Features Unique International Book Collection

A plaid-covered book containing a bottle of Scotch, a pardon signed by Abraham Lincoln, and a Balinese "book" are a few of the interesting objects found in the McDonald Room of the library. Although most people have heard of the McDonald Room, not many know what it contains or how it was started.

The McDonald collection was begun in 1932, when Mary McDonald presented three valuable and beautifully bound sets of books to the school as a Christmas gift. Classics in literature, history, art and science were used as basic sets of books. Mrs. McDonald felt since Oregon State was primarily a technological and scientific school, the fine arts should not be neglected.

Seniors First In Registration
The order of registration in the collection is given on the back of the schedule of classes. Seniors will be admitted before other students according to this order:

came too large to keep with the other books. So, during Homecoming, 1934, the McDonald Room was opened. At the time of Mrs. McDonald's death, there were over 2400 volumes in the collection. Seven hundred of her own books were also added later.

"Wee Drappies," a book of stories by Sir Harry Lauder, a Scotch comedian of questionable reputation, is a very unusual book. It is covered with plaid and inside a hole is cut on every page so a tiny bottle of Scotch fits into the book.

Book Is Made From Wood
The "book" from Bali is made of two pieces of wood comparable to the shape of a ruler. In between are 11 pieces of reed-like material the same shape, which form the pages. It is held together by a string with a knot in one end, threaded right through the middle. The printing is very fine, and if you read Balinese you might enjoy the text.

In the collection is a rare Gettysburg edition of the "Complete Works of Abraham Lincoln." The last volume contains rare portraits, autographs and letters of Lincoln and other prominent men of his time. These are actual documents, not the kind that are printed on the page. Among them are a pardon signed by President Lincoln, orders from the Navy Department of 1864, and certificates of sale of public lands signed by Martin Van Buren and John Tyler.

"Celebrated Crimes" Offered
Mystery fans might be interested in the eight volumes of "Celebrated Crimes," by Alexandre Dumas. This is a deluxe edition of which only 500 copies were printed.

"Distant cousins" of the Dead Sea Scrolls is the phrase used to describe the leather scrolls which are part of the collection. Even in those days the author worried about getting his printing straight, and had guide lines drawn on the leather.

An enormous book called an antiphony is on display in the McDonald Room. It contains original hand-lettered parchment leaves with the words and music.

of old Gregorian chants. It is believed to be Flemish in origin and was written about the 15th century.

"Pearl Bible" Obtained
Among the Bibles is a "Pearl Bible" printed in 1633. A small print called pearl type, which is used for pocket editions, was used in this book. Many thousands were printed, even though it was full of printer's errors. There were so many press corrections during the printing process that no copies are exactly alike.

Complete works of Kipling
Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, Hugo, Bacon, Longfellow, Whittier, Thoreau, Twain, Shakespeare, Conrad and many other authors are in the collection.

Rare Books Are Featured
You can even find seven volumes of Audubon's "Birds of America," with descriptions and beautifully colored plates of birds. A large number of rare, interesting and beautiful books were assembled for the OSC library by Mary McDonald. The McDonald room provides a fine opportunity for students to acquaint themselves with books they may never have another chance to see.

Traffic Board Lists Matters For Students

Three important matters are brought by the Traffic Committee to the attention of all students driving cars or riding bicycles on campus.

First of all, many students who have received traffic citations for parking are not reporting to the campus police as they should. Students are reminded that ignoring citations may result in suspension from school.

Another reminder is to all students riding bicycles to stay off the sidewalks. Bicycles are to be ridden in the street and from now on anyone caught riding on the sidewalks will be subject to fine. Students are also reminded that parking by the new physics chemistry building is for staff parking only and citations will be issued to any student cars in the area.

119th Speech Contest Winners Are Selected
Winners of the 119th Inter-School Speech Contest finals were selected Wednesday evening in contests held at the College Playhouse.

Lola Bessey, '63, won the contest with a speech entitled "The Decline and Fall of the American Empire."

Miss Bessey described civilization as following a pattern—building to a peak and then declining or falling. She compared the rise of civilization in America to the rise of Greece, France, Italy and England and established a movement of civilization westward around the world as history has progressed.

"Human internal self satisfaction causes the decay of civilization," she stated. "As people become overconfident and self centered, they begin to fight among themselves and lose their power. New nations assume leadership and begin to conquer. This causes a movement of world power and leadership."

The warning issued by Miss Bessey in her speech presented many examples for thought.

Brian Busch placed second by asking "What's the Hurry?" and Reba Jo Nelson placed third by telling "Salmon Tails."

Honorable mentions were won by Orren Schadewitz, Harold Jensen and Jerry Carlson.

Beverly Burgoyne moderated the speeches and Dr. Earl W. Wells, Donald R. Henry, Harold M. Livingston and Ralph W. Peterson, members of the Speech Department were helped with judging duties by Elvin Judah, Earl Spangenberg and Pauline Anderson.

119th Speech Contest Winners Are Selected

Winners of the 119th Inter-School Speech Contest finals were selected Wednesday evening in contests held at the College Playhouse.

Lola Bessey, '63, won the contest with a speech entitled "The Decline and Fall of the American Empire."

Miss Bessey described civilization as following a pattern—building to a peak and then declining or falling. She compared the rise of civilization in America to the rise of Greece, France, Italy and England and established a movement of civilization westward around the world as history has progressed.

"Human internal self satisfaction causes the decay of civilization," she stated. "As people become overconfident and self centered, they begin to fight among themselves and lose their power. New nations assume leadership and begin to conquer. This causes

The warning issued by Miss Bessey in her speech presented many examples for thought.

"We gotta make better time than this!"

The road's jammed with holiday traffic, but this bird is out to make things a little bit tougher on everybody.

He wants to get home before dark, you see, so he's driving like a crazy fool. Burning up the highway, pounding on the horn, cutting in and out, passing on turns, trying to beat the other fellow at every intersection.

And you know something? He may never get home at all. His kind of driving is responsible for those long death lists in the paper after every holiday weekend.

Don't drive this way when you're out with your family over the holiday weekend. Give yourself time. Start early, and you won't have to drive too far at night or spend too long a stretch behind the wheel. Make it a pleasant ride instead of a mad race.

Play, but play safe over the holiday...

BE CAREFUL - the life you save may be your own!

SOCIAL SIDE

Oregon State College will be represented this year on Mademoiselle's national College Board by Margaret Blackburn '62, Lee Brumfield '60, Patricia E. Coffey '61. They are among the 819 students at 314 colleges who will report to Mademoiselle this year on college life and the college scene.

As a College Board member, each girl will complete an assignment that will help her explore her interests and abilities in writing, editing, fashion, advertising or art, in competition for the 20 Guest Editorships to be awarded by the magazine at the end of May.

The Guest Editors will be brought to New York for four weeks next June to help write, edit and illustrate Mademoiselle's 1960 August College issue. Their transportation will be paid to and from New York and they will receive a regular salary for their work.

In addition to their work on the magazine, Guest Editors will interview outstanding men and women in their chosen fields to help clarify their career aims, will visit fashion showrooms, publishing houses and advertising agencies and will take part in the parties Mademoiselle is planning for them.

Plain Horse Sense

WALSALL, England (UPI)—George Melia pleaded innocent in court Wednesday to a charge that he allowed a horse to stray onto the highway.

"It wasn't a horse," he told the court, "it was a white mule."

The court agreed and dismissed the case on the ground the summons had been incorrectly worded.

Pins and Rings

By JANET FISHER
Barometer Society Editor

A scavenger hunt for notes throughout the Alpha Phi house Monday night during dinner finally led to a note which revealed the pinning of GAIL DINWIDDLE to JIM THOMSON, Lambda Chi Alpha.

CAREY EDSON, Delta Zeta from the U of Cal, had dinner with MIKE LAURS at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house Feb. 22 during her weekend visit here. While making introductions, Dick Seide, man introduced Carey as Mike's new "pin mate," announcing the couple's pinning. A serenade honored her after dinner.

The Sackett D housemother read a poem at dinner recently and opened a package which contained another box and note with directions to pass the gift to the next table. This went on for several tables with more smaller boxes and notes. One specified person finally opened the box and found a ring which she delivered to MARY LOU KERR, engaged to JERRY AUSTIN who was once from Sackett C and is now with the Army in Germany.

An announcement supposedly to publicize the Sophomore Cotillion was made Monday night after dinner was served at the Kappa house. The talk was ended with mention of candidates for Betty Coed, stating that a special meeting had been called with the outcome that it made no difference in selection even though JEAN CAIRNEY is pinned to AARON THOMAS, Lambda Chi Alpha.

A conversation between two girls at the Sigma Kappa house Monday night concerned a lost DU pin. Their talk finally resulted in revealing the pinning of ANNETTE STROMBERG to ERNIE LUND.

The women of Kappa Delta filed onto their balcony at 2 a.m. Sunday morning, Feb. 28, to hear the expected serenade from the Phi Deltis, honoring BARBARA BUESCHER for her recent pinning to DICK BRINGHURST. The surprise came when the couple's formal engagement was announced.

Sackett D
Elsie Will '63, was elected and installed as president of Sackett D. Miss Will follows Reba Jo Nelson who presided during 1959-60. Other officers are Marie Durette, treasurer and Patty Anderson, social chairman.

Fashion Series Is Scheduled In Spring Term

"The Many Faces of Fashion," a fashion training course sponsored by the Portland Fashion Group, will be held at the Portland Art Museum. The five week lecture series will meet March 8, 15, 22, 29 and April 5.

Speakers and program subjects for the course have been announced. On March 8, C. M. Bishop, Jr., men's merchandise sales manager and Frank King, women's wear division manager, both of Pendleton Woolen Mills, will speak on "Fashion Faces East."

Edith Raymond, fashion editor of Mademoiselle in New York will be a guest speaker.

"What Management Expects of You" will be the program for March 15. Harold Hirsch, president of White Stag Manufacturing Co., and John J. Reilly, Jr., president of Western Department Stores will be the speakers.

Miss Betty Bryant, head designer for girl's division of White Stag Manufacturing Co., and D. Spence Gill, advertising sales promotion manager of B. P. John Furniture Corp., will discuss "Designers Create Many Faces," on March 22.

"Interpretation of Fashion Through Coordination" will be the topic discussed by Miss Dorothy Downing, fashion coordinator of Meier and Frank Co. and Donald Stevenson, interior designer from Sieberts in Beaverton, on March 29.

Gerry Frank, vice president of Meier and Frank Co. and manager of the Salem store, and Max Sullivan, director of the Portland Art Museum will speak on April 5. The program topic is "Community Activities Determine Fashion Trends."

The five week lecture series by fashion authorities costs $5. Registration must be made in advance. Dr. Florence Petzel, head of the clothing and textiles department has the registration forms.

Students who cannot attend the whole series may attend single sessions at a special rate. The rate will be $2 for adults and $1.50 for students for the single sessions. If a group of 10 or more go, the rate of $1 will be charged. It is not necessary to make reservations in advance for the single sessions.

Japanese Princess Marries Commoner

TOKYO (UPI)—Princess Suga, youngest daughter of the emperor and a spunky champion of western-style rights for Japanese womanhood, married an $8.30-a-week bank clerk today in an ancient Shinto wedding ritual that broke her ties to royalty.

Shortly after the ceremony, Suga, 21, now plain Mrs. Hisanaga Shimazu, announced she and her husband were considering a delayed honeymoon visit to the United States—provided they could afford it.

Art Department Head Gives Views on Career Beginning

By MARGARET HEATER
Barometer Feature Writer

"When in grade school I must have painted to say something that could be said in no other way or to get out of something else I was supposed to do," says Dr. Gordon W. Gilkey, head of OSC Art Department, whose interest in art dates back to his pre-teen days. Now, years later, he is still interested in art and his works are located in art museums throughout the United States and Europe.

Gilkey, the artist, was selected in 1937 to make the official fine arts record of the New York World's Fair 1939. Sets of 54 original etchings of the fair are now preserved in the great museums in New York City, Washington, D.C., Brussels, London, Paris and in the royal collection at the palace in The Hague. The reprints have been reproduced in book form "Etchings: New York World's Fair," and published by Charles Scribner's Sons at the opening of the fair in 1939.

During World War II Gilkey was head of the United States War Department Special Staff art projects in Europe. From 1945 to August, 1947, Colonel Gilkey aided in the location, preservation and restitution of Nazi-looted art master works, helped the rehabilitation of Nazi-persecuted artists, found and confiscated some 8,000 paintings of Nazi war art. These paintings are now in the collections of the United States Army and Air Force museums and historical properties collections.

After spending more than five years on active duty and before returning to the United States, Colonel Gilkey was called to the office of the President of France in Paris. There President Charles Auriol voiced his personal thanks for the work connected with the restoration of French properties. Later, in 1948 at the Oregon State College, Professor Gilkey was awarded by French decree, the title "Officier d'Academie" with the decoration "Palme Academique." In 1949 Gilkey received Italy's Gold Medal for outstanding service.

In September, 1947, Professor Gilkey began his teaching career at Oregon State College. For his classes in art history he needed (Continued on page 5, column 1)

...CORVAIR IS BOTH!

A wonderfully useful folding seat makes every Corvair two cars in one. Just one quick flip and you increase the luggage and parcel space to 28.9 cubic feet. And just as simply, you're back to comfortable six-passenger capacity. It's standard equipment...and extraordinarily practical.

Corvair does car-pool duty with the biggest and best of them. Going to work or school or out for the evening, you've got a genuine six-seater. As for carting around piles of stuff instead of people, just look at Corvair's station-sedan load space with the rear seat folded. And when that's full you can start on the trunk. Corvair, you see, is no ordinary compact car. No others are so versatile, so ingeniously engineered—with independent suspension at all four wheels, an air-cooled V-6 engine that never needs water or antifreeze. You just can't compare anything else coming out these days with a Corvair. Drive one...soon.

It's a College When Wife

By FRANCIS ROTHMAN
Men, men, men; this is the world.

A working wife is God's gift to a student husband. The woman does the daily chores around the house and on the night hour day at the office. Some other establishments her husband attends classes around in the busy college life. Then she comes, not to relax and be pampered, but to fix supper dishes, type on hubby's report, carry on the family correspondence so that the two of them find out what is going on in the world.

It's a College Man's World - When Wife Does the Work

By FRANCIS ROTHAGE
Men, men, men; this is a man's world. Is it any wonder that 25 percent of the men on campus are married and that the figure is so low — 10 percent — for the women? Men get married and keep going to school, but most women that marry a student get married and go to work. Men like to say that this just goes to show that the women are more glib. Maybe, though, it shows that the men are looking harder for someone to help them. No matter what these percentages show, if anything, statisticians predict that on anational level, 33 percent of the college students in 1970 will be married.

Frank Howard Best Looking Dodger Rookie

United Press International
The "big rookie" of the 1960 training season is Frank Howard of the Los Angeles Dodgers.
It's true literally because Howard stretches 6 feet, 7 inches and weighs about 250 pounds and it's true competitively because the $100,000 bonus baby just could be ready to make the big time this year. And, if that's true, those Dodgers are likely to become solid choices to make it two straight National League pennants.

Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants and Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox flexed their muscles in intra-squad games Wednesday but it was Howard who produced the eye-popping news — a tremendous wallop that not even Arthur (Red) Patterson, who ran down Mickey Mantle's famous 565-foot drive in Washington, D.C., several years ago, could find.

Howard, who hit 43 homers in the minor leagues last season and is regarded as certain to be a great major league slugger some day, cleared a tree in dead center field, 442 feet from the plate at Vero Beach, Fla.

Howard is trying out for first base with the Dodgers and will force a complete realignment of the team if he makes it. Manager Walt Alton admits it and so does veteran first-baseman Gil Hodges, who could wind up in the outfield or at third base if the big kid comes through.
Mays belted two homers in the Giants' intra-squad game while Williams connected for a 380-foot homer on the first pitch served up to him in the Red Sox' game. Williams, who only a week ago was talking about retiring, showed no signs of his mysterious neck ailment.

Frank Robinson continued his heavy spring hitting for the Cincinnati Reds and Al Kaline, runner-up to American League batting champion Harvey Kuenn, took special drills for the Detroit Tigers. Robinson hit two homers and drove in four runs in the Reds' intra-squad game. Kaline, who hit 327 last season, had a special 1 1/2 hour batting drill which he said "would help me get the snap and roll back in my wrists."

Bobby Malkmus, a 297 hitter at Denver last season, hit three singles in the Philadelphia Phillies' first intra-squad game.

Art Department Head Gives Career Views
color slides and none were in the inventory of the Art Department. He immediately began to photograph exhibitions of paintings, sculpture, drawings and examples of architecture to provide visual material for his Survey of the Visual Arts classes. Through his own photography and by purchase, the department files now contain over 12,000 color slides of the great period of art history. An important part of the collection surveys the work of today. In 1956, with the cooperation of the Oregon State College Memorial Union, Dr. Gilkey set up an campus now recognize the working wife with a PHT which is presented to the wife when her husband graduates. The school of Engineering originated this idea and in 1959, 305 engineering students graduated and nearly half that number of Put Hubby Through Degrees were awarded engineering wives. There were about 275 PHT's awarded at graduation last year. If all working wives of OSC students were recognized the number would greatly exceed that.

Two Together Live Cheaper
Men are simply lucky that there are so many women around that are willing to take on such a big task. For a woman to bring home enough for two to live on is sometimes extremely difficult. The low paying jobs that are open to the anxious-to-work-wife are like trying to swim a raging river to avoid a forest fire. Nevertheless, it seems that more and more, students are finding that two can live together more cheaply than two can live separately. The campus now has over 1,300 married men attending classes and in 1970 it is estimated that there will be near 3,000. If the percentage of working wives stays the same, there will be about 1,500 working wives. More and more it is going to become a man's world.

PAUL GARRISON In Tournament

OSC Student Set to Bowl In Tournament

Oregon State student Paul Garrison, 61, will be one of the two representatives from eleven western states to enter the National Bowling Congress matches at Toledo, Ohio, next week. Garrison, a junior in forestry at OSC, is from Tacoma, Wash.

Garrison won the right to attend the bowling fete by winning the open doubles tournament at Bel-lingham, Wash. He beat Jimmie Stevenson with a high game of 279, and a high series of 718 and had the high league average at Beaver Bowl in Corvallis.

The other representative for the eleven western states is from the University of Oregon. The two bowlers will make the trip together to Toledo this weekend. Bowlers from all over the United States will take part in the championship bowling tourney.

Seven to Be Picked For Miss Corvallis

Seven finalists for the Miss Corvallis pageant April 12 will be chosen from the 37 applicants in the semi-finals March 27 in the Home Economics Auditorium. The girls represent living groups on the campus and are vying for the "Miss Corvallis" title. She will then compete with other local winners in the state for the "Miss Oregon" title. She will then be eligible to run for Miss America.

Semi-finalists are Caroline Cochran, Ann Reed, Judy Woodey, Judy Kerns, Linda Long, Linda Rassmussen, Judy Meyer, Betty Fujii, Inez Gabica, Marydell Matheny, Elizabeth Ann Penny, Carol Portillo, Joy Varney, Vina Maxwell, Snell Hall; Susan Swenson.

International Exchange Art Exhibition Program to bring in outstanding exhibits from abroad and to circulate throughout North America for several years each. As a part of the exchange he has selected strong surveys of American art to send abroad.

To date he has directed the circulation of exhibits from France, Italy, Great Britain, Norway, Germany, Holland and Yugoslavia.

"Cultural ties that may be developed between countries are of a more permanent nature and because of such understanding the cause of peace is advanced," Gilkey believes.

THE SPORTSMAN'S CORNER
By DICK WALLACE

Most Pacific Northwest residents interested in fishing and the out-of-doors realize that the Pacific salmon and steelhead trout are anadromous fish, that is, they hatch in freshwater and move to the salt water where they remain until maturity. To complete their life cycle the fish return to the freshwater where the spawning act takes place. There is very little deviation from this pattern in the Pacific salmon. However, the steelhead trout is the anadromous form of the rainbow trout. They are the same species of fish. Other fish have a life pattern similar to that of the salmon. Some examples are the lamprey, smelt, and shad.

Cutthroat Trout Are Anadromous

However, in isolated areas many of the trout have anadromous forms, at least to some extent. An excellent example is the coastal sea-run cutthroat trout. This is the same species of cutthroat that can be found throughout the western United States. The eastern brook trout migrates to and feeds in the bays in some sections of its range, as does the brown trout. In Alaska the dolly varden is anadromous and can be caught quite often in saltwater areas. Anadromous forms are generally large specimens, presumably due to the inexhaustible food supply that is present.

Steelhead angling was generally poor over the weekend. Most coastal streams were out of shape, due to the heavy rains and the quick melting of the snow. The water temperature increased from 40 to 46 degrees over the weekend on the Alsea River. This and high water seemed to stimulate fish movement, as many fish were seen working the dam and trap entrance on the North Fork.

George Eicher, fisheries biologist for Portland General Electric Company, reported that 1350 silver salmon were counted and passed over P.G.E.'s dam on the North Fork of the Clackamas River this winter. This figure is nearly twice as many as have been recorded for each of the past two years.

Wildlife Leaflets Released

The Oregon State Game Commission has announced that the latest in a series of informational leaflets on Oregon's wildlife is now available for distribution to interested people. This leaflet covers only the larger predatory animals found in the state and is entitled, "Mammals of Prey." The information found in the publication includes some identifying features of some of these animals, some life history and habits, and the general distribution of the animals. The bear, cat, and dog families are included in the leaflet. This is the 12th leaflet available in this series. Others include "Upland Game Birds," "Salmon of Oregon," "Trout of Oregon," "Pond Ducks of Oregon," and other of Oregon's varied wildlife. The leaflets may be obtained free of charge upon request from the State Game Commission.

Pause That Refreshes

NEW YORK (UPI) — When a Long Island Railroad commuter train bogged down about 30 miles east of Manhattan a considerate conductor announced the delay would be a long one.
"You guys will want to phone your wives and there's also a friendly tavern in town," he said.
"I'll blow the train whistle loud and long when we're ready to pull out. You won't have to worry about a thing."
An hour later the whistle blasts were heard — loud and long. The happy commuters reboarded the train and continued homeward.

Ducks Upend Ags; Play Utah Tonight

By JACK RICKARD
Gazette-Times Sports Editor
New Mexico State lost 6-7 220-pound George Knighton on five personal fouls with eight minutes to go, and with him went the Aggies hopes of upsetting the Oregon Webfoots in last night's first round NCAA playoff game at Gill Coliseum.

The Ducks, down by a 34-27 margin at halftime, came on strong in the final 10 minutes for a 68-60 triumph to gain a spot in the Western Regional NCAA playoffs at Seattle this weekend. Oregon will meet Utah, sixth-ranked team in the nation, in a first-night pairing in Seattle. Defending national champion California and Santa Clara meet in the other half of the twin bill.

A crowd of only 2106, the smallest crowd to see a night-time college game in the pavilion since the 1951-52 season, watched the Aggies blow an eight-point advantage in 10 minutes to an aroused Duck tide.

But if ever a ball game had a turning point, last night's did. That was when Knighton, who had caused Oregon's defense plenty of trouble with his variety of moves on the inside, was whistled down for his fifth personal foul.

The big sophomore, a most valuable player choice here in December in the Far West Classic, had scored 22 of his team's 48 points. Oregon had just taken a 52-48 lead when he left the game, but without him, the New Mexico offense was a sputtering attack.

Oregon had five players in double figures, but one was Charlie Warren who tallied 15 points as a substitute, 13 of them in the final nine and a half minutes. Warren took only nine shots in getting his seven baskets, with six of his two-pointers coming when the Webfoots really needed them.

Oregon made their big bid with less than 10 minutes left on the clock and New Mexico State ahead 48-44. Warren started an 11-point surge with a quick one-hander, followed by two quick lay-ins by Denny Strickland that put Oregon ahead 50-48.

New Mexico State was never able to pull even again in the final eight and a half minutes. After a Warren rebound shot, Simmons hit a free throw on the play, and another Warren rebound basket made it 55-50, 11 straight points by the Ducks.

Warren added seven of the last 13 Oregon points, but New Mexico State was not a contender — Knighton was on the bench.

The Ducks shot a blistering 44.4 in the second half as compared to .394 for the Aggies, and had 16 baskets to only six for the losers in the final 20 minutes.

New Mexico State had hit at a 42.4 clip in the first half to .333 for the Ducks in gaining their 34-27 intermission edge.

Knighton scored 13 of his 22 points in the first half, and forward Gerald Robison added 11.

And the big Aggie sophomore, but a 23-year old one, scored his team's first nine points of the second half.

New Mexico State made nine ball-handling errors in each half to only 10 for the entire game for Oregon. Rebounds were even at 33-53, with Billy Joe Price of the Aggies the top individual with 13.

Warren led Oregon with 15, followed by Chuck Rask with 13, Strickland with 12, Bill Simmons at 11, and Dale Herron with 10. After Knighton's 22, New Mexico State slumped off to 11 each for Robison and Price.

Oregon Prep Matmen Vie For State Championships

The biggest wrestling tournament ever unfolded in these parts — perhaps anywhere — opens at mammoth Gill Coliseum Friday when they blow the whistle on the 13th annual state high school mat championships.

A grand total of 416 contestants from all parts of Oregon will be on hand for competition in both A-1 and A-2 and B divisions. By Saturday night, when champions are crowned, 520 matches will have been completed.

Eight mats will be in operation on the Coliseum floor at the same time, and over $25,000 worth of ensolate matting is involved. The Corvallis Active Club and OSC athletic department serve as co-hosts for the affair, with Dale Thomas as tournament director and Bill Neland as tournament manager.

Redmond's defending A-1 champions again look strong, with 12 men entered here as the result of district qualifying last week-end. Sweet Home, the runner-up for A-1 honors in 1959, qualified only eight men this time, as did Park Rose, Hillsboro and Bend. Coming here with nine entrants each will be Roseburg, Grants Pass, Klamath Falls and Tillamook.

In A-2 ranks, where Class B contestants also compete, Sutherlin's defending titlists have 16 men entered. Vale has 15, Myrtle Point 14 and St. Francis of Eugene 13.

A-1 individual champions will return number six, and all but one have moved up a weight notch. Don Polite, Tillamook, won the 157-pound crown last year and returns at the same weight. Others include Ken Eberhard, formerly 98 pounds but now entered at 106; Jim Ricci, Redmond, champ at 106 but now at 115; Dave Payne, Sweet Home, from 115 to 123; Ron Johnson, Franklin of Portland, from 123 to 130; and Clarence Seal, Redmond, from 141 to 148.

Friday's first-round session, consisting of 208 bouts, will run from 12:30 until 5 p.m. First-round winners return to action Friday night at 7 p.m., with wrestling continuing until 9. Consolation Finals and championship finals are scheduled Saturday night.

George Pasero, sports editor of the Oregon Journal in Portland, will be on hand to help present championship trophies Saturday night.

PORTLAND (UPI)—Ron Jones, sophomore at Oregon College of Education, captured the Oregon Collegiate conference scoring title. Jones scored 287 points in 13 games for a 22 point per game average. He missed the last three games of the season because of a cracked wrist.

Only two others finished the OCC season with more than 200 points. Gordy Carrigan of Southern Oregon scored 255 points and Frank Chase of Eastern Oregon had 240.

Kansas Gains NCAA Spot

United Press International

Three years ago, Kansas went all the way to the final of the NCAA basketball tournament before dropping a one-point, triple-overtime decision to North Carolina.

The Jayhawks were sparked that season by a seven-foot import from Philadelphia's Overbrook High School named Wilt Chamberlain.

Now coach Dick Harp's kids are back in the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1957 — and their big gunner is another Overbrook High graduate, Wayne Hightower.

The six-foot-nine sophomore teamed with Jerry Gardner, another soph, in leading Kansas to an 84-82 overtime victory over Kansas State Wednesday night that earned the Jayhawks the right to represent the Big Eight conference in the NCAA jamboree.

Kansas will meet Texas, the Southwest Conference champion, in the second round of the midwest regionals at Manhattan, Kan., Friday night. Cincinnati led by fabulous Oscar Robertson, will face De Paul on the same doubleheader program.

Oregon advanced to the second round of the Far West regionals with a come-from-behind 68-60 triumph over New Mexico State at Corvallis, Ore. Charlie Warren came off the bench to score 13 of his 15 points in the second half and help the Ducks wipe out a 34-27 halftime deficit.

In the second round at Seattle, Oregon will play Utah and defending champion California faces Santa Clara.

The pairings for Friday night's other regionals are:

East at Charlotte, N.C. — Duke vs. St. Joseph's and Rochester U. of N. Y., vs. New York University.

Midwest at Louisville, Ky. — Georgia Tech vs. Ohio University and Ohio State vs. Western Kentucky.

Pilots Pick All-Foes

PORTLAND (UPI)—University of Portland officials said today that Santa Clara, Gonzaga and Iona College of New York would compete here next Dec. 16-17 in the second annual City of Roses basketball tournament.

The Pilots also announced their all-opponent team. It included Frank Burgess, Gonzaga; Bob Mealy, Manhattan; Chuck Rask, Oregon; Don Ogorek, Seattle; and Larry Chanay, Montana State.

Oregon State Crew to Meet UBC on Saturday Afternoon

The OSC crew completes its drill today in preparation for the first race of the season against Canada's Olympic team from the University of British Columbia, here on Saturday.

High hopes were voiced for a win in this crucial meet and Coach Karl Drica commented that this year's Beaver squad was one of the best he had ever coached. The crewmen have been practicing since the beginning of fall quarter with only occasional layoffs due to drift carried down by rising water. Even on the days when the snow fell heaviest, the oarsmen were on the river training. Four seniors and five juniors make up the nucleus of this year's team supported by 13 sophomores in the varsity shells.

Last year the Beavers began their season with a win over USC and Stanford in a three-way meet at Redwood City, Calif. In this victory they established a new course record of 6:03 for the 2,000-meter course. Later meets saw them lose to the powerful University of Washington crew by one length, and later be nosed out by Stanford on their own course when the Indians reversed their earlier loss by establishing a new OSC record of 5:50.3.

The University of British Columbia boasts one of its largest, enthusiastic and most experienced crews in its rowing history. Coach Frank Read's 1960 roster consists of 35 oarsmen, 15 of which have had rowing experience in either the 1956 Olympics, or the 1958 British Empire Games, or the 1959 Pan American Games. UBC has their entire 1959 Pan American Crew returning this year.

The races are scheduled for Saturday afternoon with starting time for the freshmen event at 1 p.m. This race will be followed by the junior varsity contest and then by the varsity.

The eight varsity oarsmen will be selected from the following roster of varsity competitors. Those not selected will represent OSC in the junior varsity contest, in this the first crew race of the season.

OSC Grapplers Prepare For National Tournament

The Oregon State wrestling team finished another successful season with a win in the PCI tourney last week end. The win topped off the season which found the Beavers winning 15 dual meets, while losing only three and drawing one. They won the Oregon Invitational tournament and had three individual champions in the PCI tournament. They also kept in tact the record of never having lost to a coast college team since 1957. They left the season with a fifteen match winning streak and they will lose only one of their first team by graduation.

The OSC grapplers worked as a team all year, winning matches that seemed impossible just when they counted, and here are the individuals that did it:

Mitzi Tamura
The 115 pound senior wrestled above his weight almost all season but still managed to pick up 12 wins in his seventeen matches. Mitzi won the coast 115 pound crown last year and appeared as the favorite in this year's tourney. Illness took its toll and the best that the Beaver lightweight could salvage was a third place. Tamura will be the first stringer not back for action next year and his loss will be felt heavily by the Beavers.

Jerry Perez
Probably the biggest surprise of the PCI tournament was Jerry Perez. The 123 pound sophomore had shown spurs of greatness throughout the season while he compiled 15-4-2 record but wasn't given too much of a chance to walk off with the honors at the PCI. The fiery little sophomore didn't seem to care what everybody else thought and when the chips were down, Perez came through with the PCI crown. Perez has two more years of competition left at OSC and may be one of the best before he finishes.

Ron Finley
"The most improved wrestler on the team," is how coach Dale Thomas described Ron Finley. Ron seemed to have a lot of problems at the first of the season, but he was willing to work at them and he overcame most of them, climaxing the season with a third place finish in the PCI tournament. Finley, like Perez, has two more years on the Beaver mats.

Tobe Zwegardt
Tobe lost three matches this year, two of them to PCI champion Bill Berry of Washington State, the last of these a one point overtime decision for the PCI championship. The only out of state wrestler on the team, the 147 pound sophomore comes from St. Francis, Kansas. Zwegardt is one of the many wrestlers that has instilled the team spirit on the Beaver wrestling team. His constant hustle and desire to improve have not only helped him but have been inspirational to the entire team.

Chancy Ball
The first time Chancy Ball ever wrestled in a college match was last year in the coast tournament. He filled in for an injured Beaver first stringer and came out second on the coast. Ball had the reputation of winning this year when he was least expected to. In the Beaver losses almost every time one of the lone winners would be the 157 pound junior. Ball had a rough time in the PCI tourney meeting the tourney most valuable wrestler in the first round, he did score team points however and narrowly missed the third place spot.

Fritz Fivian
The 167 pound junior letterman who originally is from Thun, Switzerland, did wonders as a freshman and sophomore. He became the first Beaver to win a national title in many years. He won the national AAU crown last year and the coast championship the past two years. Fritz spent last summer touring Europe with an all-American team. Fritz wrestled every meet for the Beavers this year and compiled a most impressive record: 20 wins in 23 matches. He won 11 of these by falls. He should have a good chance to walk off with honors from the NCAA tournament.

Don Conway
For the second straight year Don Conway reigns as the coast's 177 pound champion. Last year Conway was fifth in the AAU tournament. Don has been beaten only three times in his college career. He is one of the outstanding competitors on the Beaver squad. Conway compiled the highest percentage on the team winning 16, losing only two and drawing one. Like Fivian, Conway should have good chance at the NCAA tournament.

Darrell Kauffman
Another of the Sophomores on Coach Dale Thomas' squad, Kauffman started out slow. He came on strong in a great performance last weekend as he took second in the PCI tourney, defeated the favorite in the 191 pound division and just missed the championship. If Darrell continues to improve like he has through this season he should be great. He has always been a crowd pleaser with his hustle and aggressiveness. With this year's experience behind him he should be the heavyweight to beat on the coast next year.

Baseball is the national sport of Nicaragua.
